Introduction

Fleetdisk is an online fleet management portal that allows fleet managers to manage their entire fleet in a clear and organized way. It is the successor to the former fleet management portal called I-wise. Fleetdisk is packed with various features that provide interesting insights.

The homepage

This is the page you see first. It shows a brief overview of current, expiring, and expired contracts, as well as the total number of damage reports and orders. There is also a window showing notifications about vehicles without a mileage update and outstanding damage reports.

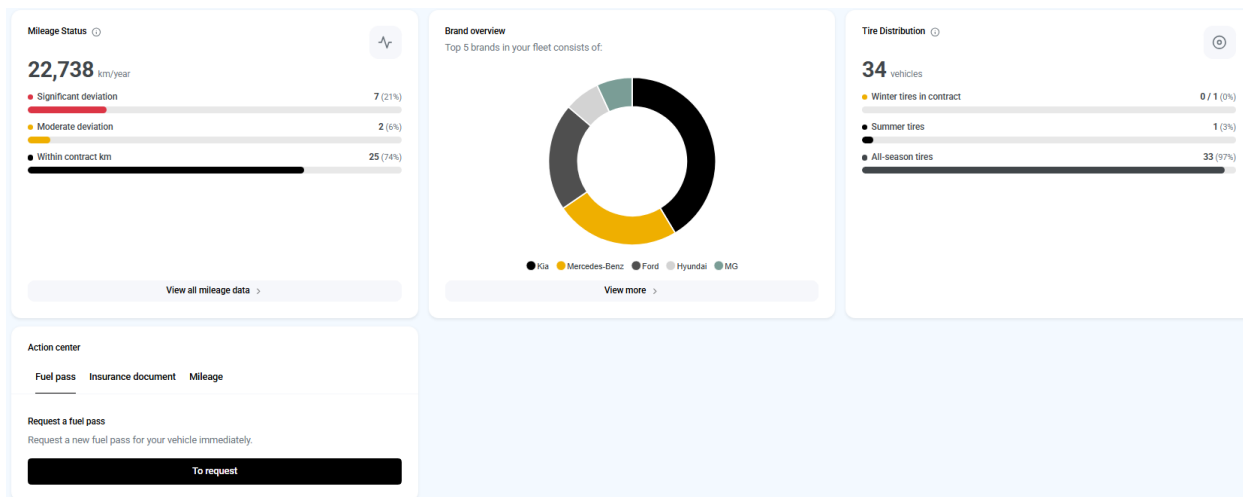

Dashboard – overview of contracts, notifications, and development of lease contracts

Next to the notifications window is a bar chart that visualizes the number of lease contracts per month. You can download this data by clicking the icon to the right of the chart. At the top of the homepage, you can search directly for a lease contract to retrieve all the information for that specific contract.

The homepage dashboard also shows the mileage status, indicating whether vehicles are within or above their contractual mileage allowance. In addition, there is an overview of the makes in your fleet and the types of tires your vehicles use, according to their contracts. In the action center, you can request a fuel card and an insurance document. You can also update the mileage here.

The features

On the left side of the homepage is a list of the various features that Fleetsdisk offers. These features are explained below.

Leasing

1. Lease contracts

An overview of lease contracts is shown, including active contracts, terminated contracts, and contracts for vehicles still on order. This overview also shows the vehicle information, contract information, contract components, and the last known mileage. Clicking on a contract gives you more information about that contract.
